To Whom it May Concern:

We at First Baptist Church of Clewiston were very pleased with Southeast Roofing Consultants, Inc. Our church properties were badly damaged by hurricane Wilma in October of 2005. We subsequently entered into an agreement with a general contractor which was a bad experience from beginning to end for our church. Most of the next year and a half was spent waiting for repairs to be done, and our buildings remained damaged. We felt at times as if our church would never be back to it's original state.

In the spring of 2007 we entered into an agreement with Puroclean of the Gulf Coast, which sub contracted Southeast Roofing to completely replace the roof over the educational wing of our facility. The roof was a very old flat roof with many layers of roofing material and many years of patches. The age of the roof and extent of the damage caused by Wilma prompted us to take a hard look at the sub-structure of the roof itself. We found that the substrate material on which the roof had been built, was also deteriorating. The folks from Southeast Roofing came in and sat down with our church leadership, and walked us through the entire repair sequence. They explained the repair process, and gave us a firm time line on which we could depend. They satisfied all of concerns regarding timing and safety. They worked with us to schedule repairs around our weekly services, weddings, and a children's day school. Specific areas had to be repaired at specific times in order to cause the least amount of upset to our membership. The construction area was kept clean, well marked and safe for our members and children throughout what was a difficult and slow process of removing all the old material and installing the new. The interior of our classrooms was protected from falling debris and outside elements throughout the demolition and installation. During the repairs additional damage to an AC unit ducting as well as some overhead stucco were encountered, and all were dealt with promptly.

In conclusion, we found Southeast Roofing Consultants to be very professional, and people of their word. These are very rare attributes in today's contractor environment. The work was done professionally, safe, and on time. We would not hesitate to use them in the future for any roofing needs, and would recommend them to others with difficult roofing repair needs.

Sincerely,
Glen Pridgen
